THAT BOX OF YOURS.
His Success in Life Depends Largely on a Right Start.

It is not the amount of money you have your children so much as it is the habits they learn from you that insure their success. Teach your children the value of money by encouraging them to save systematically. Habits of thrift established in youth bear rich fruit later on. A savings account, opened with $1 or more, for your boy, at the Young Trust Company, is a little you will not feel, but as one can tell how much he has made come from it. An account with "The Young" means that all his life your boy will have a competent and faithful adviser in all money matters. Write or call for handsome booklet.—Adv.

Mother of Eighteen Children.
"I am the mother of eighteen children and have the praise of doing more work than any young woman in my town," writes Mrs. C. E. Martin, Boone Hill, Va. "I suffered for five years with stomach trouble and could not eat as much as a child without suffering. I have taken three bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets and am now a well woman and weigh 120 pounds. I can eat anything I want to and as much as I want and feel better than I have at any time in ten years. I refer to any one in Boone Hill or vicinity and they will vouch for what I say." Chamberlain's Tablets are for sale by all druggists.—Advertisement.

Conference Year Ends.
Yesterday marked the last Sunday of the conference year of the Methodist Protestant Church. The annual conference of the Pittsburg district opens Wednesday afternoon in Fairmount and will be in session over Sunday. Dr. C. W. Now everybody can know and enjoy the crisp goodness of fresh baked soda crackers without going to the baker's oven.

Uneeda Biscuit bring the bakery to you.

A food to live on. Stamina for workers. Strength for the delicate. Give them to the little folks.

COREY RETURNS

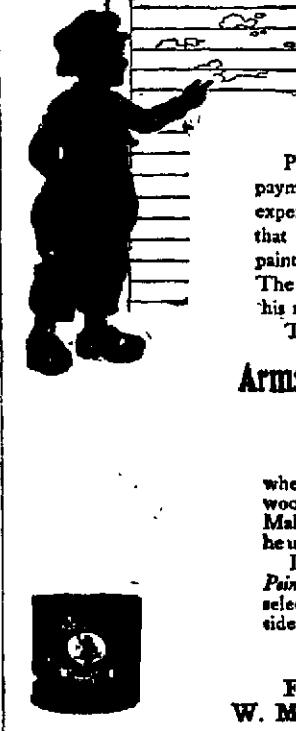

Parla More Favorable Towards American Securities, He Says.

William Ellis Corey, former President of the United States Steel Corporation, returning from Paris on board the Imperator, said that the pessimistic feeling engendered in France by the financial troubles of the St. Louis & San Francisco had about disappeared.

Sentiment abroad was improving along nearly every line, he said, due both to the fact that the Balkan difficulties were regarded as practically over and to the growing belief that conditions in the United States were brightening. The one really bad feature here, he said, was the poor corn crop. He would not discuss steel or copper matters.

 One cannot read the recent published report of the British iron trade without feeling that the situation in Great Britain is a very serious one. ## Ponderous Personages.

CLEOPATRA.

By GEORGE FITCH.
 Author of "At Good Old Swah."

Cleopatra's full name was Cleopatra Auletes, and she was the daughter of old man Auletes, who was sole owner of Egypt and at a time so remote in history that even the after dinner jokes of today had not then been heard of.
 Cleopatra was a beautiful girl and bright in her studies. She would have gotten along all right and would probably have become social dictator of the country and lived to a fat old age if her father had not died and left the country for her and her brother to rule. This required them to marry according to the Egyptian custom of that time and Cleopatra, from that minute became discomfited and a prey to the habit of looking at fascinating strangers with large round eyes.
 One of these strangers was Julius Caesar. He conquered the country, but when he met Cleo, he laid aside his sword and dabbled around in plain writing muddy notes and ran up taxen bills until a great deal of money was produced. Shortly after Caesar went home, his old colleague, Mark Antony, came over and when Mark and Cleo met at the Thebes horse show the thermometer went up 1,000 degrees in three minutes.
 Cleopatra was amazingly beautiful and Mark butted into the social league in Rome. Within a week Mark's officers had to call him up at Cleopatra's palace whenever they wanted orders and the business of the Roman world languished while Mark dabbled Cleopatra about on the bosom of the Nile and splashed his best white tunic pulling water lilies for her. He gave her Cyrene, Cyprus, Phoenicia, Crete and a number of other countries as a token of his affection and when she asked for Judaea and Arabia in addition he tossed over the boards without a murmur and merely asked her to dance at the next assembly hall.
 Matters were floating along in the 18th super stratum of bliss for Antony and Cleopatra when Augustus Caesar, who was running the world at that time, came over to check up Antony's accounts. When he missed some eight or nine countries and couldn't find any record of them he accused Antony of knocking down on him and ordered out the royal fleet. Anthony and Cleopatra harassed by their combined warships and put up a fight, but while they had loitered around under the pyramids singing "Love Me and the World is Mine," in very close harmony the Egyptian navy went to thunder. They were defeated with great slaughter and when Augustus expressed a determination to use Antony's hide for a new sharo drum head the latter gave up and fell up on his sword with great slaughter.

 Cleopatra then spent three days redesigning her Marcelle wave and going over her complexion with great care, after which she advanced upon Augustus and gave him a half-million power smile. But Augustus, who was all ready married and was no hand at society anyway, grabbed up a fresh bunch of correspondence and asked Cleopatra to close the door when she went out. This discouraged Cleopatra to such an extent that she borrowed an asp which is a kind of low tension rattlesnake, from a personal friend and allowed it to bite her on her pink round forearm. Her funeral was largely attended.

 Cleopatra was doubtless a very good girl for her times and if all the newspaper reports from the extensively razed stratum of modern day life can be believed, she wouldn't have shocked society a whole lot in some parts of the world today.

BY-PRODUCT PLANT ON PACIFIC COAST IS A POSSIBILITY

Proposition Would Open
New Market for Pittsburg Gas Coal.

FREIGHT RATE IS THE PROBLEM

Proposition Hinges Largely Upon the Cost of Getting Coal to San Francisco by Way of the Panama Canal;
Operators Watching the Project.

Shippers of what are commonly termed high volatile or gas coals are expecting to profit largely by develop-ments in the next few years. It is pointed out that export shipments of gas coals have grown largely in the last few years, and that as soon as the Panama Canal is opened, outlet will be found in the Pacific for a great tonnage of these coals. Already capitalists on the Pacific Coast are figuring on establishing a by-product coke plant at San Francisco, expecting to receive coal for this plant from the Atlantic seaboard, the coal to be transported through the Canal.

At present, a great deal of coke that is used on the Pacific coast is received from Australia, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia, produce the most celebrated coking coals in the world, and it remains to be seen if the plan of the San Francisco people is feasible. By establishing the by-product coke plant at San Francisco they will have a good market for all of the by-products, so that there will be no loss from any source.

At present good coking coals can be loaded on vessels at the various Atlantic ports at from $2.60 to $3 per ton. By making a contract for a good tonnage over a period of years, these prices may be materially reduced. No one has so far estimated the cost of transporting coal from the Atlantic to the Pacific via the canal; that is, no one has so far ventured to name a price at which they would accept business. In a general way it has been pointed out that American owned ships which will be enabled, according to the present understanding of the canal bills, to use the canal free of charge, can take coal to common points along the coast of California at a cost of not exceeding $2 a ton. This price is given where it is understood that the ships would receive return cargoes. This would mean the laying down of good coals at San Francisco at about $6.50 to $8 per ton. At present transportation of coals from the Atlantic to the Pacific by American bottoms costs from $5.50 to $6.50 alone.

During the last few years American coal shippers have built up a good trade for the high volatile or gas coals in the Mediterranean. The Egyptian State Railways are taking at Alexandria approximately 10,000 tons of American coals each month, while large tonnage are going continually to French and Italian ports in the Mediterranean. Recently an American firm secured a contract to ship approximately 50,000 tons of gas coals to Harcelone, Spain. Cargoes are constantly going to Spanish American ports, and it is known that interests are working to introduce these coals into many countries, where it has hitherto been considered the habit of only to expect to ship American fuel.

SECOND FURNACE IS READY

Torch Was Applied at Monessen Plant This Morning.

While the lighting of blast furnace No. 1 on August 2 marked a new epoch in the industrial history and development of Monessen, the lighting of a second new blast furnace, No. 2, today, was of slightly less importance to the Pittsburgh Steel Company.

The new furnace was lighted at 11 A. M. with a number of officials of the company and guests present for the ceremony. Furnace No. 1 has been in service as an iron producer for the past three weeks from was cast in less than the allotted 42 hours after it was lighted, and time after time it has been tipped 1 for further production.

Diarrhoea quickly cured. "I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others who I gave it to," writes M. J. O'Leary, Toledo, Ind. "I had been at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement."
